Notes from the On Sex.

Hi Everyone,

The view from the lookout at Bayee Pass was superb and with the sun setting, the reflection off the sea was something to behold. Even the photos I took didn't do justice to the actual sight. Hence coming a little early to the run had its bonus since not only did we have no traffic but I managed to see this great view too. A lot of negative things are said about this run site ...too far, too much traffic to name but 2 but in reality it is about halfway on the Island and hence should be easily reached from any direction. But it does offer a variety of runs and I have had some very good ones here and was looking forward to another one.

It was Pukka Sahib's run and I reasoned that it would be interesting and probably not too long since Frank would think about the back runners and not want them to come out in the dark. As it turned out one of these was correct. It was an interesting run but it was dark when Akz Hole and I made it back to the run site and were surprised to hear that we were not the last, as some of those in front of us had lost paper and were headed in the wrong direction, until Jorgen's trusty GPS told them to turn around and find another route!

There were 2 places of confusion which undid many. The first was the start of the final climb since either the paper had been picked up or it was Frank's way of testing the front runners. Either way they missed the turn and carried on along the road. But it makes you wonder why since there was NO PAPER!! Why not go back to the last sighting and FIND it!! However Rambo found it and called on. Some of the runners returned to the point and began the climb but some did not. The other difficult area was close to a workers shack where the rubbish made it very hard to find paper and by this time it was dark. It was at this point that the middle runners lost their way and started following old paper from another run!! Akz Hole and I scaled a landslide to the left of the shack and came out on a track close to a small shrine with the path leading down to the restaurant just up from the run site. We ambled down road and it was some more time before the others appeared. But at least all returned in time to have fruits (provided by the Hare from his own orchard) and makan from the stall. So thanks very much Frank for a good interesting run and certainly a very pleasant evening.

1st Joint Penang Hash Chapters Run

This was held at Bee Gallery on the 27 November 2011. It was held as a 'get to know your fellow Hash Chapters'. About 120 turned up from the Mainland and from the Island Hashes. The next run will be held on the mainland next year and alternatively every 6 months thereafter. Being Harriets we lent our support to this run and about 25 of us turned up making us the largest single Chapter in attendance. So well done to all.
