Note from the VGM

Hi Everyone,

Welcome to Eddie Punk's run. We had 30 odd runs with 7 guests. All Flying Kiwis guest. Good to see him back. Welcome.

The hare announced as medium run with no checks. Off we went the usual trail. It was slippery due to the rain other than that it was a pleasant run. For once the hare was honest it was a medium. Thanks for everything. On On.

Rain stopped at 6.08pm. Co-hares were Itchy Bai and G-man. Oh no! One could imagine How the run would be!!! After the usual ritual off we went to the start of papers. Muddy, Slippery and thorns left and right. Tried to push myself by holding on to the branches. Ouch!!! Thorn branch I held, poking my fingers and the pain slowed me down. I looked up and no one was in front, but could hear Edna and Rupiah shouting my name.

Flying Kiwi and his entourage overtook me. Thank god I still have Huge behind me. Came to a Place where there was nothing to grab, could see slippery footsteps. How am I going up? Suddenly I saw Rupiah waiting up there with a stick as slim as her. She tried to pull me up and what a joke Ha Ha! She looked so cute!! On our way we met TT Yeoh who lost paper and so he stayed with us. Then I started to enjoy the mist, fresh air wish I could stay on

A bit longer but darkness crept in and we had to hurry. At last reached the Indian Temple. I was glad that I did it all the way. Good run Good sweat.

Funnies

1. As the family gathered for a big dinner together, the youngest son announced that he had just signed up at an army recruiter's office. There were audible gasps around the table, then some laughter, as his older brothers shared their disbelief that he could handle this new situation. "Oh, come on, quit joking," snickered one. "You didn't really do that, did you?" "You would never get through basic training," scoffed another. The new recruit looked to his mother for help, but she was just gazing at him. When she finally spoke, she simply asked, "Do you really plan to make your own bed every morning?"
2. As a member of the organization that installs computer systems aboard Navy ships, I am mindful of how important the off-ship e-mail capabilities are to sailor morale, especially when some vessels are deployed for up to six months. One day while shopping at the base commissary, I noticed another crucial aspect of my job. I was behind a frazzled mother with two active children, and as I watched, she stalked over to where her young son had perched himself on the rail of the freezer case. "If you don't get off there right now," she commanded, "I'm going to e-mail your father!"
3. Airman Jones was assigned to the induction center, where he advised new recruits about their government benefits, especially their GI insurance. It wasn't long before Captain Smith noticed that Airman Jones was having a staggeringly high success-rate, selling insurance to nearly 100% of the recruits he advised. Rather than ask about this, the Captain stood in the back of the room and listened to Jones' sales pitch. Jones explained the basics of the GI Insurance to the new recruits, and then said: "If you have GI Insurance and go into battle and are killed, the government has to pay $200,000 to your beneficiaries. If you don't have GI insurance, and you go into battle and get killed, the government only has to pay a maximum of $6000. Now," he concluded, "which group do you think they are going to send into battle first?"
4. On some air bases the Air Force is on one side of the field and civilian aircraft use the other side of the field, with the control tower in the middle. One day the tower received a call from an aircraft asking, "What time is it?" The tower responded, "Who is calling?" The aircraft replied, "What difference does it make?" The tower replied, "It makes a lot of difference. If it is an American Airlines flight, it is 3 o'clock. If it is an Air Force plane, it is 1500 hours. If it is a Navy aircraft, it is 6 bells. If it is an Army aircraft, the big hand is on the 12 and the little hand is on the 3. If it is a Marine Corps aircraft, it's Thursday afternoon."
