RUN SITE- BEE GALLERY

We all rocked up to Bee Gallery for Snow White's run and were feeling really good because the weather looked dry! In the initial circle we welcomed Alex an old friend of Fancy Pants. We were told by the contractors to stay on paper. So off we all troddled along the road towards the Gardens but we were watching for paper and saw when it went off to the right after the bridge. We were of course expecting to go straight into the gardens, but this is hash, so instead we went to the left of the shack that was at one point sporting political posters. We then teetered on the edge of the river, and through rough bits and over gaps, holes etc until we spilled out by the side of the toilet. This would not normally have been a welcome sight but on this hash it was!

We thought things from now on would be easy but as we entered the jungle and started the climb we were aware of just how much rain had fallen recently. We took one step forward and then slipped back half a step. But were we daunted – no! We gallantly soldiered on. There was however a collective huge sigh when we reached the roped steps and realised we could have just ambled up the ordinary path! As so many of the laughing short cutters had done!

But this was early days so time to take a deep breath and get on with it. We continued with the skirting and upward climb until we reached the top. The on down which is normally such a relief was difficult because there seemed to be a vine ready to grab your foot at every turn. So we eased our way down carefully and then crossed the bridge and ran hell for leather for two minutes until back at the site.

In good weather this would be a perfect run so Sai Seng has promised to set it again but with an extension!

CIRCLE:

FUNNIES

Two Alabama State Troopers were chasing a Camaro East on I-20 toward Georgia. When the suspect crossed the Georgia line, the first Trooper pulled over quickly.

The rookie Trooper pulled in behind him and said, "Hey, sarge, why did you stop?"

The sarge replied, "He's in Georgia now. They're an hour ahead of us, so we'll never catch him."
