NEWSLETTER 2204

GM's Note:

It must be the Labour Day MANIA at hash which saw 49 members and more than 30 guests attending the run at shoplot, Tar College.

Foods were plentiful, beers were sold at discounted rate and 2 runs were laid for the ever energetic hashers - Medium and long run.

All went well -

Medium run- 1st runner were out under 2
hrs (Money)

Long run- 1st runner were out under 3hrs (Iceman)

except for Pukka Sahib who went the reverse way of the long run but were out within 5hrs (ie 10pm)

Oh!!!! What a night ..... Thank You to all who attended my run. ....

Burst

Burst for Harriets May Day Medium run

We cant access the net from our PC nowadays, so guess who got the job of transcribing Ma's burst onto a tablet! Anyway here goes and pls excuse the typos.

Hi ! I am HHM writing the burst for HHHPg. It was so nice to see everyone again after our resignation from the Harriets almost a year ago. And what a big crowd it turned out to be. Well, as usual, I was a bit late and even Uncle Bee didn't know that I had joined the run until she saw me all dirty and sweaty. The first thing she said to me was, " Can you write the burst?" So I thought, A guest, writing the burst? Why not? That could be fun! So, now for the running part. Apparently there were two runs. One medium and one long, but I just joined the run as it passed the back of our car and started running with Frank, Edna, Eddie and a few others. We started on up the drain beside Alila and after a little climb we were out in the open again and some new members or guests were making remarks like, Oh, is that all it is? But of course, it was not! Off again behind the terraced houses before turning left into the jungle. Now the climb was getting tougher! The rain that fell when the run was being set around 11.00 had made it slippery as well as very humid and hot. We were just settling back into our stride when someone shouted, BEEEEES!!! Well, what else would you expect on Uncle Bee's run? It just wouldn't be right if there weren't any bees! So anyway, we made our way round and carried on climbing and soon reached the Hash Highway, where we met up with Frank again with Viking and AML and we followed paper down leftwards. Then Pukka Sahib and crew decided that this was not long enough for them and about-turned and headed off in the opposite direction. Take Care accused us of being SCBs, of course, but we were sure we were on paper all the way and sure enough it brought us back to the runsite, without running into any bees, after a run of an hour or so. Just right for someone who hasn't been running so much for a while! Post script. The longer run opted for by Pukka Sahib, took him till 10.10p.m. but at least he came out in one piece!

Hari Hari Mahu

Burst for Harriets May Day Long run
Run Site; Permai Shop Lots, Bunny; Uncle Bee

A public holiday, so a day of rest for the workers of the world! Unless you are a Hasher and a member of Penang Hash House Harriets. A 5pm start, and two runs, a medium (hahaha) and a long run, for those of low mental capacity or none.

Up the road towards Alila we were sent, mediums and longs together. First thing to note was Camel Toe brought her daughter whose ass is exactly like Camel Toe's. So much so that when dressed in CTs running pants no difference could be discerned.

Next conversation was with Pukka Sahib, who explained his late arrival back at Saturday's run site, as being caused by having first run an old FTAC run, because, without his glasses, he could not discern the difference between Hounds paper and FTAC paper. Then being a true hasher he went and completed the Hounds run, arriving back at around 10pm.

Viking lead us through a slipping sliding and falling down on your ass trail, and then Speed Hound lead the pack off paper to avoid a rumour of bees. Upon reaching the Hash highway, paper went both up and down. Up was reversed and down was home. Since we had been promised a long run, the group went up, but another rumour has it that many went down to be home in 20 minutes. These were the Super-SCBs.

Soon the group came to the turn down towards TAR college, and so the "detouring past the bees" gang went down and located the Harriets paper again. Shark and Iceman took off and it was ground hog day, exactly like Saturday, so we knew a really long run was in store.

Through the old pig pens we ran on the flat for a while, and then on up we trudged on the muddy trial making it much more difficult.

Over the small hill and down towards the quarry, "de je vue" as the French might say. Good Year was just behind the Smiling Tiger and Shit in a Pit, as we went up again. Pink and White paper still together. The 'medium' run would be pretty long.

Coming to a stream there's Giant Rabbit, having a cooling off in the waters. The paper went up through the stream just so we could cool our feet. How kind and considerate are the hares!

Money Manfred was just ahead as the trail roller coasted up and down through rocks and streams, still the same as Saturday's run. As we went up the steep slope we discerned (my word of the day) the division of medium and long run trials. Just then a 'loose rock' tumbled down hit a bump, jumped in the air, and came down on Money's shin with a crack. Money roared, and his cry just soared, and the jungle was filled with pain.

The long run went right, and the rumours of a visit to the Haunted House seemed to be coming true. The trail was bad, and we felt half mad, but we swore we would not give in. Except Shark and Giant Rabbit, who did give in at this point.

Coming to another beautiful waterfall, a moment to enjoy nature, before some developer plants a condo on it. But the fucking hares drag us down another hundred feet before crossing the gorge and heading up again. Thorns and vines hampered our progress, but on we went though the water was spent.

After a while, a voice, like a cry in the wilderness! It was W anchor.

Sitting on a rock, like a leprechaun on his hoard of gold. He was sick with dread, at the thoughts of going to the haunted house alone, but he bravely said, its getting dark, and I guess its time we trekked and on up he led.

We thought it was nearby, the altimeter indicated 365m, but it the haunted house is at 491m, so it took a while. At last, the HH, and no spooks, at least just yet. The hares, not satisfied, took the back trail on up one more hill. And here the spooks appeared. First was Pukka Sahib, coming the opposite way!! He explained, "done this the other way on Saturday, need variety, so doing it backwards today". Next was Good year!!! But..., oh well, however he manages to do it, Good Year appears like an apparition, where you least expect him, on many a run.

Three survivors reach the pinnacle, 542m, and headed down the hash highway. The recent rains made the trail as slippery as a... well use your own dirty mind to find a suitable simile.

Half way down, the W Anchor had to have a poop, and Good Year, being torchless decided to wait for him. After 2hours and 35 minutes reach the run site and enjoy a cold 100 plus and a few beers.

Hell uva long run (11.9km or 9.4km depending on which GPS you believe and total climb of 718m!) and only four, including Pukka Sahib crazy enough to go all the way. The latter, still not the FTAC satisfied with the long run decided to do run again and only returned around 10pm again.

On On Iceman

CIRCLE

1. The first icings was to welcome all the guests from various Chapters for the support of Uncle Bee's run.

Shark was called out by the Circle Mattress for not only being his usual disruptive self but for the fact that, in Take Care's words, we should "F*ck the Duck".

The run setters had set a very long run (it took over 6 hrs to set) and the next icing acknowledged the few who actually did it all. Thanks to Iceman, W'anchor and Goodyear for having the balls to do it. I hope we didn't break them. It took them 2hrs 40 mins to complete.

The so called medium run was not so medium but a little shorter than the long (it only took 4 hours to set) and a few more did this run but many others made excuses and did an extra SHORT run. Many thanks to Money, Giant Rabbit, Gordon, Rob and Shark who at least made the setting worth while. It only took them 1hr 50 to finish.

Pimp was next iced since he came out from the wrong direction (what's new??) Everyone knows Pimp is usually the last to come out and in the dark but today he was caught up by Longhair who then persuaded him to SCB and return with him via another route. On the basis of Pukka Sahib's return time, I think it was a case of discretion being the better part of valour and Pimp took Longhair's advice and came out in the light for once!!

Since it was the first run of the month, the new schedule ensures we celebrate the month's birthday's at this time and not at the end of the month as previously. So today we had the May birthday babies on ice to wish them a HAPPY BIRTHDAY.

A charge from the floor by Camel Toe brought Iceman to the Ice Throne because he wanted to use the empty bottle to pee but the hole of the bottle was either too big or small ...frustrated he threw the bottle on the ground and gave the excuse to pick it up on the way down

The final icing was for the Bunny of the Day, Uncle Bee. Many thanks for two great runs, fine Kuay Teow Soup and the sponsored Beer. All was greatly appreciated by the large assembled pack. Many thanks too to the run setters for all their long hours in the bush. All in all, a fantastic evening!!!
