GM's Note:

The view from the top of the Chinese Temple @ Bukit Gambir were breath-taking.....one can clearly see the 1st Penang brid linking Penang to the Mainland from far. Everyone arrived early despite the heavy traffic flow @ Green lane. When circle was called at 6pm, there were 22 hashers and 6 guests ready or the short to medium run.

OMG!!!! MAS AGAIN!!!! How could such a disaster strike on the same airline twice within such a short span of time?

All of us must be stunned by the tragic news of MH17 flight.

We extend our heartfelt condolences to all those affected by the MH17 tragedy.....May their lovely soul rest blissfully in the Gardens of Heaven.....

RIP MH 17!!!!

Burst: Run 2214

Date: 17 July 2014

Hare: Good Licker

Venue: Bukit Gambier, Chinese Temple

A run setter's story!

Bukit Gambier is forever changing with monstrous concrete buildings and diggers on the road leading to the runsite.

I was surprised Sai Seng was alone as the GM had chosen 9.30am to meet as she was also to help set the run. It seems the GM had texted him around 3.30am saying she was somewhat inebriated and couldn't make it. He was lucky he got a text as she had left Silentman and myself waiting the last time as she forgot to press 'send' in her stupor!!!

We set off up the stairs at the rear of the temple only to be confronted by many paper trails set by other Chapters, making it look as though Christmas had arrived early. With both of us leading in turn and stopping to give direction to the trail, we ended up skirting the slope on the Delima side of the hill. Up and down we went with Sai Seng's cutters coming in very useful on many occasions.

The trail was a mix of old, new and tough in places, as the roots had a way of forever finding your feet to trip you up!! But on we went until we realised that if we went on any further we would meet the paper from last week's run, which we did. This was about an hour after we started and so we decided to take the same "On Up" as we did on Molly's run.

As I struggled up the slope, I slipped and started a mini landslide as rocks and earth tumbled down the hillside. Sai Seng, for all his size, was pretty nimble to get out of the way. Finally after a stiff climb we hit the ridge andSHOCK!!! HORROR!!! It was littered with hash paper!!!! It was everywhere and I do wish hashers would clip on the leaves and not on the tree trunks or litter the ground.

As we progressed the ridge I was about to take another step when I spotted a colourful red/brown "shoelace" about a eighteen inches long lying across the track. On closer inspection we realised it was a snake but it was so motionless we originally thought it was dead. Not taking any chances Sai Seng got a branch and carefully lifted it and still it remained motionless but it revealed a zigzag pattern underneath like a ladder. He put it on a branch out of the way but after he had deposited it it moved at last. It dropped to the ground and slithered away.

We continued along the ridge but instead of the normal way down the track back to the temple, we went right and came down some slippery and steep terrain further over but this too was annoyingly littered in hash paper and I'm sure even the near sighted would complain!! Finally we skirted the bottom of the hill and back to the runsite.

In all it was a short run really, about 3.1Km altogether but it did give a good work out!!

Just a pity about all the paper though!!!

Circle

Guests Welcomed- Susan, Peter Juicy2, Ganesa, Dick and Ah Lye (Bon Voyage to Susan and Peter who is leaving for home soon)

Next, Sai Seng on the ice- "Ladies Beware!!" Make sure you zip your shorts/trousers. Sai Seng caught Mem Shabib trousers" unzipped" in the open

Charges saw Goodyear iced the SCB- Mother Hen, Silent Man and beauty Queen doing a shorter run using their "Brains"

Benz next, for leaving his wrapped bread in the GM's orange bag since last week run and according to him, it's still fresh and eatable..and he got it from Tesco..So now, do you know where to buy fresh bread to can last a week?

Lastly, Hare were Thanked for a good short to medium run and good fried BeeHoon.
