GM's Note:

Another good turnout of over 40 hashers @ Whatever's run @ Leader gardens. The weather was fine until about 9pm when it started pouring. It doesn't dampen the spirit of the hashers who were seen seating under the umbrella and enjoying the COLD sponsored Tiger Beers!

Luckily it was a short run- 35 mins for the fast runners and 11/2 for the slower runners, Thanks to our co-hares Sai Seng and Silentman for being so considerate taking into account of the raining season.

Joint Hash Ball Tickets are NOW ON SALE and It's RUNNING OUT FAST. Please get yours ASAP from any committee members.....We appreciate Lucky draws goodies, sponsorship of cash/kind and YOUR ATTENDANCE to make this event a SUCCESSFUL one. Please Support YOUR CLUB!!!!

Bunny: Whatever

Location: Leader Garden

We arrived at the location just before 5.50pm and my husband greeted Whatever with 'Wow, you're much more popular than Tiny she had such a poor turnout for her Tuesday Run' Now I'm suffering from a shrunken ego and GM approaches with a request for the burst. I guess when you're having a bad day, the crap piles up round you.

Everyone was in fine fettle because it was not raining-yeah!!

There was a very healthy circle when GM called us in. We had two minutes silence to honour Stephener who died last week. After the usual guest welcome, the Bunny told us it was a short run and it started through the gate at the end of the road.

We know it is the rainy season and that windows of dry have to be appreciated so off we all trotted towards the gate. Frank was heading in the opposite direction because he hadn't yet deposited his key. It was so good to see Pukka Sahib as Memsahib had tried to poison him last week. Now take note guys, as ladies go Cheng is one of the sweetest, most caring I know. So if she can do this, watch out for the rest of the harriets!

We went through the gate, up the slope to the Chinese shrine, up a bit further and skirt to the left and then a nice run down but at the back of the mind is that insistent nag, what goes down is going to have to come up. We skirt some more and then another lovely down, the same nag is now a thundering presence!

We arrive at the familiar almost horizontal path and jog happily along it, across the open square, over the stream and then the real part of the run starts. We start going up and it is hard work. First it is slippery from all the recent rain and then this side of the hill is steep. However, we grit our teeth, remind ourselves that the faster we go the sooner we'll be back at the beer truck and this carries the moment and we storm ahead.

At last we start a horizontal skirt and know that we have broken the run, the rest will be a doddle in comparison. Soon we are jogging down the familiar home trail back to the road and the welcome site of the beer lorry.

As usual a very good run and the short length very appropriate for the rainy season.

On On's
