Location: Bee Gallery

Hare: Speed Hound

GM was bouncing up and down in the initial circle and telling us how happy she was that this was her last week in office. She introduced the guests and then the contractor, Sai Seng, told us it was a medium run with no checks.

Off we trundled to the second bridge. As usual Money Manfred was leading, Goodyear was following with his usual funny but caustic remarks and then me – desperately trying to stay with them as long as possible. Suddenly Money was cursing and dancing because he was going through the shuggy. As Goodyear and I were following the actual paper we avoided this!

We crossed the open area and started up the hill. We went left a bit and up a bit and so on. The hillside was still slippery beyond belief. The trail then went down and although the short cutters were way behind, I could hear them exclaim at this point –‘No Need to go down. If we stay up we’ll meet the paper later.’

So now, we were moving left and down and down and down. So inevitably we had to go up again. We clambered over rocks and up to the top. Then of course, we had to go down the ropes, through the lily pond area along the path in the Botanical Gardens and then the short road run back to the site.

As usual, a great Thursday run
