GM's Notes

It was a hot and sunny Thursday. Just the sort of day we wanted, for today was the day of the Christmas run and I hoped it would stay fine all day and the evening too. Unfortunately I wasn't fine! Aches and pains of the flu had hit me the night before and hence it was Akz Hole who went off to set the run with Sai Seng. He was back about 3 hours later saying it was a short run but tough in places as the earth was soft but not outright wet and shiggy. As the afternoon wore on the sun went behind clouds on and off and then more off than on, as the clouds built menacingly above!

Arriving at the run site I was a little confused and wondered if the venue had been changed already as there was no one there. However a quick call to Viking followed by some other cars turning up allayed my fears and by 5.45 a good crowd had assembled. We had three guests, Rosalind and Ian, who are coming to live here and have hashed with some years previously and Eric Lim from PIH2.

Off they all went after a group photo but they didn't return until 45+ mins later for the front runners. Iceman came late as usual and was out in 25 mins but he must have 'ghosted' passed the others as they say no one saw him!!

However whilst they were on the run the weather seemed to be getting darker and certainly out across the water there was heavy rain and heading our way! The organisers decided to abandon the runsite and head over to Mt. Pleasure for the food and the rest of the evening. By the time the last runners were out and heading 'just around the corner' the first drops of rain started and it wasn't many minutes later that the heavens opened and the deluge began. Thank goodness everyone was out in time and now safely ensconced under the cover of the deserted building.

The food was served up by our very own Santas. Delicious roasted pork, roast chicken together with a tasty red cabbage and a potato salad. More than enough to go around and it was great to see many going back for more as the evening unfolded. The beer was also subsidised which made the evening even more appealing to those drinkers amongst us. We naturally had our usual short circle and then settled down to an evening of chatter and great camaraderie.

Many thanks to the organising committee headed up by Viking and to all who contributed in whatever way to make the evening another success.

Circle

1. Welcome our guests. Rosalind, Ian and Eric Lim. A short but good run and good food they said.
2. Whilst the runners were still out it looked as though it might rain. Much debate went on and finally the move to Mt. Pleasure was made. Kissing(h)er and Kiss Me quickly moved over although it wasn't raining at the time but later it bucketed down so they got the blame for moving early!! (Plus and icing as a welcome back from their various travels.)
3. Goodyear is a FRB or SCB, whatever way one looks at it. He normally comes out first or there about. Not today he was MIA for some time and even Iceman came back (after his usual late start) before him. Goodyear's explanation was that he was laying paper to help the others and that Iceman never passed him anyway!!
4. That brought Iceman to the ice. He was back in 25 mins when it took the rest between 45 and 90 mins. We know Iceman is fast but it is claimed no one saw him go past them. He is either faster than the speed of light or he took the wrong route AGAIN!!
5. A welcome return for our beerman, Samy after his trip to India. On being quizzed about his trip he definitely had a knowing smile on his lips but would say nothing other than he 'had a GOOD time'!
6. Every run has to have someone to lay it. Today's hares were the usual stalwart Sai Seng accompanied this week by Akz Hole. Many thanks to you both.
7. As with the Hares, someone has to organize and cook. Chief organizer for this week was Viking most ably helped by the rest of the Chefs and Cooks. A Great thanks to all of you for contributing to a very successful evening.
8. Uncle Bee then asked for a group photos for all those members wearing the Christmas T-shirt given out a couple of years ago. They were suitably accommodated with Viking having the place of honour.

2016 Subs are now due. Please don't expect the On Cash to chase you.
Do the right thing and seek her out to pay!!
