GM's Notes

It was a cool evening after the downpour of the previous night. It is also that time of year when the days are short but the nights longer! As we started the run we had five guests, Graham, Monique, Kellin, late comer Alison and Alice. Alice opted to just walk around on the tar road whilst the rest did the run. It was a wise choice!

From the beginning the wet slippery terrain was a challenge in itself and I soon found myself at the back of the pack along with Silentman and Pimp to keep me company. It was a familiar trail but made harder due to the rains and at one point we saw Mother Hen and Beauty Queen heading back the way we had come.

The trail leads up to a clearing with different paths to take depending on where one wants to exit but today reaching there was very slow and poor Silent man had to keep waiting for us. It became dark very soon and to my dismay my torch died on me however Pimp immediately offered me his torch.

At the top the path took us in the opposite direction to where we would ultimately have to come out to be back at the runsite. This was a little disconcerting however the paper trail was that way and we duly followed. We need not have worried however as it then turned left and hugged the ledge of ferns. I knew where I was at this stage and it dawned on me that we still had another on up to do before going all the way down. Pimp and I were both quite tired at this stage as we plodded on but Silent man spurred us on up the last bit until we hit the path for the On Down!

The slippery soil and darkness had us sliding down many a time as well as falling over vines and having to dodge prickles and holes. The path seemed unending but once again thanks to a very patient Silentman who guided us through the darkness.

It seemed like an eternity before we exited through rubbish at the Indian temple where Imposter was waiting with a relieved look on his face and we all walked back to the runsite.

It was 8.45pm by this time and many of the group had gone home. However the Bunny had made delicious Chilli Con Carne and baked turmeric bread followed by homemade cake which all went down very well after our arduous trek.

We then had a quick circle. Many thanks to Kiss Me for the tough run, delicious food and cake not to mention the rum punch!!

Circle

1. Welcome the guests (but only 3 were remaining) Kellin, Alice and Graham.
2. A charge from the floor saw the Hash Cash charge a guest for not having a hash T-shirt. However, being the man he is, Dieu Lah Sing took her place on the ice instead as he said it was his fault.
3. A similar charge was made to Kellin but she implicated Call Girl for not telling her about the need. So they both took to the ice.
4. The On Sex was next to take the ice throne to face a charge from the GM of having Jet lag driving from Balik Pulau as she is always saying how tired she is.
5. The On Sex remained seated as Call Girl charged her with memory loss as she keeps changing her run dates.

The final icing for the evening was for the Bunny of the Day, Kiss Me. Many thanks for a good evening despite the late hour.
